South Carolina Drugs of Abuse Conference

The Problem

In South Carolina, like so many other states, the drug abuse landscape is very complex and confusing. Drug use patterns and trends are constantly changing within our state on almost a daily basis. Developing strategies to combat issues created by abuse of illicit and pharmaceutical drugs is a challenging proposition for public service agencies and professionals. The South Carolina Drugs of Abuse Conference is an event by which South Carolina law enforcement, social service professionals, medical and community leaders can stay up to date on the drugs of abuse affecting their communities.

The Solution

The South Carolina Drugs of Abuse Conference (SCDAC) is designed to integrate instruction from nationally recognized speakers with the experience of South Carolina professionals. The past five statewide conferences examined the impact of and solutions to drug abuse in South Carolina, especially the methamphetamine problem. The SCDAC takes a look at drugs of abuse and how they are interrelated to other problems in a given town, city, or region. Often times, problems created by drugs of abuse are more than one agency or organization can handle so the SCDAC stands "United Against Drugs."

Conference Objectives

- Promote better awareness among and between South Carolina professionals and communities regarding the extensive impact of drugs of abuse in our communities.
- Provide relevant, up to date, instruction from nationally recognized speakers and local experts to aid in the formation of a comprehensive response to problems created by drugs of abuse.
- Explore the nature of drug use and how it interrelates with other crimes in South Carolina.
- Examine factors related to the prevention of drug use as well as the treatment of drug abuse in South Carolina.
